Who Was Penelope, Wife of Samuel Swazey?

BY KENN STRYKER-RODDA

NEXT to the tombstone of Judge Samuel Swazey in the Chester, N. J., Congregational cemetery is a twin stone with the following inscription:

Here lies the body of Penelope, the wife of Samuel Swazey, who was born in Southold, Long Island February 14, 1690, and removed from thence to Roxbury May 17, 1737, where she continued to reside until she departed this life December 1, 1746, aged 55 years, 9 months and 17 days.

The 1698 census of Southold shows only two Penelopes: "Peanellope Horton" in the household of widow Sarah Horton, and "Peanellope Windes" in the household of Barnabas Windes. Admittedly, another Penelope might have been born in Southold in 1690 and have moved within the next eight years; but considering the infrequency of the name, this possibility may be disregarded with comparative impunity.

In his Genealogy of the Swasey Family (1910), Benjamin Franklin Swazey made no attempt to identify Penelope, nor has anyone else who has written on the family. However, the consensus of researchers has been that she was Penelope Windes.

However, the will of Barnabas Winds of Southold, made 7 April 1708, and printed for the first time in NYGBR 80:216-17, mentions his fourth daughter, "Penelope ye wife of Providence Rider." (It had been thought that the gift-deed recorded in the Southold Town Records, 2:25-26, was the only will of Barnabas Windes.)

Thus it is probable that Samuel Swazey's wife was Penelope Horton, daughter of Barnabas<sup>3</sup> (Caleb<sup>2</sup>, Barnabas<sup>1</sup>) and Sarah Hines. All of the children of this couple must have born between 1687 and 1696, as their marriage occurred in April 1686 (Clemens' American Marriage Records before 1699) and Barnabas died in December 1696 (Salmon records).

LAWRENCEVILLE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCHYARD

The gravestone inscriptions were copied by Oliver D. Drake and Russell B. Rankin on Sept. 12 and 13, 1941, and checked by Isaac M. Philhower and Edwin A. Baldwin on Sept. 13, 1952. Recently the Society's copy was checked against two other copies in the New Jersey Historical Society and one in the New Jersey State Library. Discrepancies were noted among the various copies (made over the last forty years), as well as in Woodward and Hageman's History of Burlington and Mercer Counties (1883), page 779. These discrepancies were resolved April 20, 1957, when a final check was made by Edward J. Raser.

In the older portions of the cemetery wide gaps exist between gravestones. There is little doubt that unmarked burials are in most of these areas. More than a dozen uninscribed fieldstones are found here, being especially prominent near the Phillips plots.

Early reports state that an extension of the church covered some graves, and that some stones have been removed to Lawrenceville Cemetery. During the building of a church hall in 1954, a number of stones at the rear of the church were laid against the back of the church. Despite the wear and tear of the years, only a couple of stones, known from earlier copies, could not be found when the final check was made.
